Rare progenitor strength

Such an accumulation of top-sport genes as in Quasimodo Z is seldom seen. It has now been established beyond doubt that the qualities nowadays required for the highest level are anchored in the DNA of this genetic high-flyer. Quasimodo Z can indeed provide great statistics via his progeny. At the beginning of 2019 there were already more than 200 internationally-competing progeny, 33 of which at 1.60m-level. This means that more than 25% of his progeny aged ten years or more are graded at 1.40m-level or higher. Furthermore, there are a remarkable number of international eventing horses, a reflection of Quasimodo's ability to pass on blood and rideability.

All second generation horses successful in the sport

One look at Quasimodo's pedigree, bred by Jaap Laamens from Duizel, tells a large part of the story. All the horses in the first two generations of this stallion, who himself competed at 1.60m-level under Norwegian Morten Djupvik, are successfully competing in the sport, five out of six of which are even competing at 1.60m-level! Needless to say, one of these is Quasimodo's famous sire Quidam de Revel, also a world class producer who has meanwhile built up a true stallion line via his sons. Another legend is grandsire Carthago Z. This world class top horse is perhaps most especially known as the sire of fantastic (brood)mares. Quasimodo's dam Caloma Z is certainly one of these, thanks partly to the unbelievable line of preferent stallions Libero H, Ramiro Z, Luck Boy xx and Farn that we find further back in the pedigree.

Mare Caloma took part in 15 Grand Prix

Quasimodo was the first foal of Caloma, who then went on to have a very successful sports career. As a seven-year-old she was already jumping at 1.50m-level and was Champion of England. A year later she competed under Djupvik. With him she qualified in more than 15 Grand prix and took part in World Cup competitions as well as Nations Cups. Quasimodo's granddam Taloma (s. Libero H) produced four other international horses, as well as Caloma. In total, two of her offspring are graded at 1.60m-level and the others are at 1.55m-level,

1.50m-level and 1.40m-level. An unprecedented average given the number of her offspring.

Third generation also very strong

The story only gets better when we reach the mare Detoloma (s. Ramiro Z) in the third generation of this extremely strong branch of the well-known Loma-bloodline. As well as Taloma by Libero H, Quasimodo's great-granddam also produced the 1.50m-graded J Liberato and his full brother Liberato II, both of which are approved by Zangersheide.

Approval by top studbooks

Quasimodo Z himself is approved by Zangersheide, KWPN, NRPS and AES. The recognition by the KWPN followed after a well-above-average number of his progeny made their international debuts. Well-known Quasimodo offspring are Idi Utopia (Maikel van der Vleuten), Garfield de Tiji des Templiers (Jérôme Guery), Armstrong van de Kapel (Olivier Philippaerts), Callisto (Abdel Saïd), SRI Aladdin (Roosje Brouwer), Quolita Z (Harold Boisset), Charleville (Eve Jobs) and Denver (Bertram Allen).

Exclusive

Due to his rare progenitor strength, StuDutch already offered Quasimodo Z semen in previous years. Given the reliability of this stallion and his added value to jumping horse breeding StuDutch proceeded to buy the Quidam de Revel-son at the beginning of 2019, as a result of which the semen is exclusively available via Studutch.

Availability

The stallion Quasimodo Z is available with frozen semen.
